Course description	What is identity? How are identities constructed? How do different identities relate to one another? This course investigates these questions through a discussion of ethnicity, class, race, gender, and sexuality, in comparative perspective. We begin with theoretical approaches to identity (structuralism, phenomenology), and continue by applying these approaches to identity formation around the globe. This will include topics as diverse as construction of European identity in the Eurovision song contest, public display of masculinity in Bali, or consumerism in postsocialist Hungary. The main objective of the course is to enable students to critically reflect on various theoretical concepts of identity and politics of identification. The course will cover basic concepts, issues and controversies of identity theory and the ways in which they are articulated in contemporary social sciences.
